

GRI is a non-profit organization that promotes economic sustainability. It produces one of the world's most prevalent standards for sustainability reporting — also known as ecological footprint reporting, environmental social governance reporting, triple bottom line (TBL) reporting, and corporate social responsibility reporting. GRI seeks to make sustainability reporting by all organizations as routine as, and comparable to, financial reporting. For more information about please visit:

Sustainability reporting is the practice of measuring, disclosing, and being accountable to internal and external stakeholders for organizational performance towards the goal of sustainable development. A sustainability report is an organizational report that gives information about economic, environmental, social and governance performance.
