Name of Project: Pakistan Poverty Alleviation Fund

Contract description: Follow-up Survey Incentivizing Development: A field experiment with third-tier organization (TTOs) in Pakistan

Scope of contract:

The focus of this study was a group of organizations which are called Third-Tier Organizations (TTOs), Local Support Organizations (LSOs), or Union Council Development Organizations (UCDOs). For the purposes of the research and this document the terms TTO, LSO, and UCDO were used interchangeably. These organizations were community institutions at the Union Council level, run by the community members, who were elected from lower-level organizations and serve primarily on a voluntary basis. These organizations receive financial and non-financial support from PPAF/ Partner Organizations and other development partners. The main aim of the research was to use a Randomized Control Trial (RCT) to test alternative treatments for PPAF and its Partner Organizations to engage effectively with these TTOs.

The Research Team on this RCT was a joint team of researchers at the University of Oxford and the Lahore School of Economics, with expertise in micro development economics, large-scale household and organization surveys in developing countries, empirical quantitative analysis, and randomized control trials.

The Center for Research on Economics and Business (CREB), Lahore School of Economics (LSE), in collaboration with the Pakistan Poverty Alleviation Fund, anticipates contracting a survey firm to conduct a country-wide follow-up survey to collect data on community-based development organizations.

Duration: Six months

Contract signature date: 10th May, 2019
